M-DCPS CONTINUES TO BUILD ON A FOUNDATION OF SUCCESS

We are just at the half-way mark of the 2015-2016 school year, and the story of success and innovation in Miami-Dade County Public Schools (M-DCPS) continues to unfold. The future is promising and we continue to add to an already notable list of school and district accomplishments. As we embrace the excitement and expectations of a new year, it's a good time to reflect on the good and noble work of the past year.

Despite mounting challenges around standardized testing and an ongoing lack of state funding support, M-DCPS and the school community have rallied to ensure that every child has the opportunity to succeed in the classroom. A world-class education coupled with cutting-edge technology and innovation means that we are preparing our children to enter colleges and professions across the globe.

In M-DCPS, we realize something significant about education and instructional diversity – one size-fits-none. When it comes to making comprehensive and diverse academic programs available to students we continue to hit the mark. Quite frankly, we hit the ball out of the park. In August, we opened the 2015-2016 school year with the rollout of 53 new choice and magnet programs, now boasting more than 500 choice offerings.

But it's not just our innovative programs and trendsetting initiatives that set M-DCPS apart from other school districts. It's also the exceptional academic performance of students on tests such as NAEP, widely referred to as the Nation's Report Card, as well as an impressive graduation rate, currently at 78.1 percent. According to 2014-2015 graduation data from the Florida Department of Education, Miami-Dade's high school seniors are graduating at a higher rate than high school seniors across the state.

This year, NAEP scores for M-DCPS students were higher than the national average in grade 8 and our students outperformed students in larger cities in grade 4. In specific subjects, like mathematics, the achievement of students in grade 4 improved significantly from 2013-2015, surpassing public schools nationwide, and making Miami-Dade one of only three school districts to see improvement over the same time period.

Notwithstanding the challenges we face regarding the Florida Standards Assessment's questionable validity, as well as the lack of baseline data and learning gains, our students' performance continues to outpace that of comparable school districts and the State. Florida's Commissioner of Education, Pamela Stewart, released the results of a simulated test-run of proposed cut scores used to calculate Florida's 2014-2015 School Performance Grades. The State Board of Education voted recently in support of the Commissioner's simulated proposed cut scores – a position that is both reasonable and prudent. The data for Miami-Dade County Public Schools was conclusive – M-DCPS outperformed the State.

Based on the cut scores:

- M-DCPS had a higher percentage of "A" rated schools than schools statewide
- M-DCPS outperformed Broward, Duval and Hillsborough counties on the percentage of "A" rated schools

These achievements reflect hard work in the classroom by teachers and students as well as the support of parents and communities that are fully engaged as our education partners. Together, they are the heart and soul of the Miami-Dade County Public Schools success story. It is a story that continues to evolve and will not be deterred by the challenges ahead.
